

TURKS & CAICOS AGGRESSOR II

Top Dive Sites

French Cay - Double D

The Garden of Eden! The reef wall is overgrown and there is an abundance of marine life. There are two huge coral mounds teeming with fish. A resident spotted scorpion fish often poses for photographers. Spotted Eagle Rays are often seen here.

French Cay - G-Spot

An absolutely beautiful wall with many huge deepwater gorgonians and orange elephant ear sponges growing at the wall's edge.

French Cay - Rock and Roll

The top of the wall is at 40 feet. Plenty of barrel sponges, elkhorn and pillar coral. Juvenile barracuda and lobsters spotted during the day. This a great afternoon and night dive.

French Cay - West Sand Spit

(5 miles south of French Cay) The wall starts at 40 feet and it is covered with huge coral formations—pillar corals, barrel sponges and deepwater gorgonians. Look for nurse sharks, French angels, ocean triggerfish and huge stingrays. This site is weather permitting.

Northwest Point - Black Coral Forest

The reef wall starts at 45 feet and drops to below 300 feet. There is an overhang in which at least 5 species of black coral are growing. The base of the overhang is at 75 feet.

Northwest Point - Shark Hotel

Named for the Caribbean Reef Sharks sometimes seen cruising the wall. The wall levels off at 90 feet in a plateau covered with plate corals. At 100 feet, a chimney cuts through the reef exiting at 130 feet on the deep wall, with an abundance of pillar coral on top of the reef wall.

Northwest Point - The Crack

The wall doglegs to the south forming a huge penny slot crack which divers can swim and exit at any time. A massive barrel sponge with an anemone above it is at 85 feet. Swim to the south where you may encounter schooling fish and a resident turtle.

Northwest Point - The Dome

Once the site of a French television game show, this sunken dome offers a spectacular night dive.

West Caicos - Driveway

One of the most diverse dive sites in West Caicos. The boat is moored in 35 feet of water offering the options of swimming to the wall over the Driveway, a large sand chute, or cruise on top of the wall in shallower water where there are many interesting isolated coral heads. There are anemones growing in only 5-10 feet of water.

West Caicos - Gullies

Swim through a penny slot gully that starts at 45 feet and ends at 75 feet, with beautiful sponge formations at the edge of the wall and schooling fish on top.

West Caicos - Rock Garden Interlude

The wall is divided into sections with large and beautiful sponge formations. Encounter friendly turtles and spotted scorpion fish. The sand flat on top of the wall has several nice coral heads and garden eels.

West Caicos - The Anchor/Whiteface

Called Whiteface for the white sandy cliffs along West Caicos. Swim through a gully with a 17th Century anchor wedged in the north side of the gully. A beautiful, large white anemone sits at about 95 feet at the base of the gully. Keep an eye out for the resident reef shark, who's not camera shy! Great night dive with lobsters, octopus and nurse sharks.
